1. Round 1

1.1. Reviewer 1

Reviewer:

Incorporate a broader range of studies, especially recent research that contextualizes your findings within the current understanding of marital satisfaction.

Describe in detail the instruments used for data collection, including their validation and reliability in the context of your study population.

Provide a more comprehensive explanation of the regression analysis and discuss the implications of the findings in relation to the variables studied.

Offer a deeper examination of how sexual satisfaction and psychological well-being contribute to marital satisfaction, referencing theoretical frameworks.

Authors revised the manuscript and uploaded the document.

1.2. Reviewer 2

Reviewer:

Strengthen the theoretical basis linking the constructs of sexual satisfaction, psychological well-being, and marital satisfaction.

Elaborate on the data collection process and provide a more detailed statistical analysis to substantiate your conclusions.

Expand your interpretation of the results, considering alternative explanations and situating your findings within broader psychological theories.

Discuss the practical implications of your findings for marital counseling and therapy.

Address research gaps more comprehensively and outline specific areas for future investigation, including longitudinal studies to track changes over time.

Authors revised the manuscript and uploaded the document.
